Sql Server 2005 Enterprise Edition Forums. Spoilers for the new episode of Teen Wolf: As Scott (Dylan Sprayberry) and his friends go in for their first group therapy session of the new episode, "I've Got Your Back," we learn a bit more about Max (Tyler Posey) and what he's really been struggling with, and this time his struggle is coming more from his father, Todd (played by Jon Gries). In this exclusive clip, we see Todd's reaction to Max's lack of self-control in the episode and it's not a pleasant one. Todd tells Max's parents, John (Josh Henderson) and Krista (Ashley Benson), that he's not allowed to tell his son anything. John argues with his wife over what he should do, then tells Max that his father doesn't even want him around. Later, Max's mother asks Max about his feelings and he complains to his dad that his mom never lets him have free reign like she does with Scott. Max shows his dad the missing journal pages, and Todd finally cracks - he tells Max he's grounded and doesn't want to be around him anymore. At first, Max is upset, but slowly, we can tell that this is something he needed to hear, that his dad doesn't love him and that his dad wants him to go back to what's going on with the pack. But now, we get a preview of the episode's big twist - John is going to check himself in to the school as a patient, and he tells his wife that he's worried he's going to go crazy as he's never felt like this before. Will Scott be able to help John overcome his fears? How will it
